Preksha Shah UML Student Id – 01845360 Graduated	She wanted to get the PlayStation 5 gaming console for 2 months but hasn't been able to due to shortage. While there are regular shipments, the consoles are sold out within hours/minutes. She'd like an application that can help her get one	App Found [Restocktracker.io]	While Ps5s are almost always sold out, other electronics updates are accurate, and she could get a out of stock laptop for MRP	Does not let you instantly buy the product; almost certainly sold out by the time you check	While restocktracker.io let's, you know if a ps5 is in stock for pickup/delivery. It would be better if an application can be created for all in-demand electronics like the latest gaming laptops, iPhone, ps5s, Xbox and have an option to purchase the product with a single click. An alert/notification mechanism can be set up where in the user receives a notification that the ps5 is back in stock for X price, and a buy option within the notification to purchase the console. But the main issue with this is security, which must be researched and addressed	23	Female	Data Analyst
Jahnavi Kocharla/Sister	She wants to find out online in as many as 5 simple steps what saving account is ideal for her. Instead of researching about it online and unable to decide, she wants a portal/platform where she is asked some questions about her preferences and the app finds an ideal bank offering saving account for her	Website Found [AllianceCreditUnion]	Not much, it gave general suggestions as to which savings account is good for her, but she already knew that	Only provides vague suggestions but no specific recommendations	Like my previous suggestions, there are apps like alliance credit union that give you information about good savings accounts but does not choose one for you based on your needs. Having a portal within an application that asks the user for short term and long-term saving goals, can providing them with possible banks and their plans would be great.	29	Female	Software Engineer
Deepya Ratna UML Student Id - 01988943	She does not rely on dating apps like tinder and bumble. She'd like an application that is more personalized and finds people compatible with her	App Found [Coffee meets bagel].	The conversations with matches were slightly more productive than tinder, but did not match her expectations	Only gives 5 matches every 24 hours, and the match quality is not any better than tinder/bumble	I had the idea of creating a dating app, where we ask a set of customized questions after asking the app users some basic questions about their likes/dislikes, preferences etc. this way we can get a more specific idea of the user and match them to another user based on compatibility. The algorithm to determine compatibility between two individuals must be researched about.	23	Female	Masters in business administration
Jhansi Devi/Mother	She and my dad just purchased a piece of property in Hyderabad, India to build their dream home. While both have some ideas about the design of their house, they struggle to explain it to the architect/builder. A design again/akin to the game Minecraft where they can design a home, although just a blueprint and not perfect could give the architect who is building the house a better understand of what their preferences are.	App Found [Planner 5D]	The design looks life like, so it is an accurate representation/not cartoonish	It gets expensive when you add rooms/parking/ extra furniture top your design	Apps like Planner 5D provide life like animation for home design so it costs a lot to use their apps. Having a low-cost home design app that can render acceptable graphics, but help you display whatever is in your mind would help my mom and others like her	48	Female	HomeMaker
